Fat Loss Biology

The biology of fat loss has very little to do with dieting, most forms of exercise, or the vast majority of weight loss pills.

The dogmatic advice that you must 'eat less, exercise more' to lose fat has grown to mythical proportions.

Unfortunately, it doesn't work!

The biggest problem is the failure to account for human biology – that is, the biology of fat.

This is where I can help, since I am a biologist. Here is some stunning information that you should know about the biology of fat:

How To Avoid The HCG Diet Plan

By Dr. Dennis Clark Posted under HCG Diet Plan | No Comment - Edit

The hCG diet plan is a great protocol for boosting fat loss in a hurry. However, avoiding the repeat use of it should be the goal. Too many folks fall back on old lifestyle choices, regain weight, and then depend on hCG to rescue them. Here are a few simple steps to keep this from happening again. Read more... »

Benefits of Jojoba Oil for Herbal Skin Care

share share share share +1

Oil from jojoba seeds (Simmondsia chinensis) is a popular ingredient in many herbal skin care products, including lotions, moisturizers, shampoos, hair conditioners, cleansers, and even lip balms and shaving creams. The unusual composition of this oil also provides a wound-healing activity by stimulating and stabilizing collagen production.

Uniqueness of Jojoba Oil

About half the weight of a jojoba seed comprises the mixture that we call jojoba oil. Technically, it is not similar to other plant oils. If anything, biochemically it more closely resembles sperm whale oil. In fact, jojoba oil turned out to be a superior replacement for sperm
